PARALEGAL CAREER

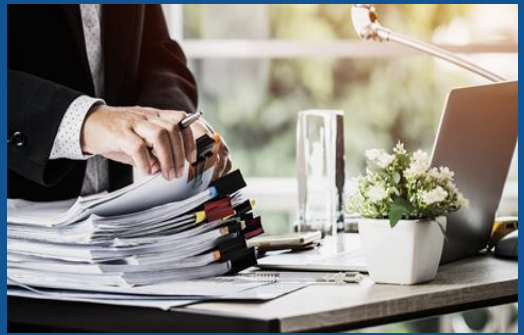

According to the research reports, the global Legal Process Outsourcing (LPO) industry is experiencing substantial growth, and has reached US$23.6 billion in 2025 and is projected to reach US$123.1 billion by 2030, growing at a CAGR of 30.0%. The US stands out as the largest contributor globally.

In order to deliver the LPO services, LPO service providers continually require skilled resources that can perform paralegal work. This growth translates into tremendous career advancement and financial growth opportunities for paralegals working at LPO service providers.

In addition to LPOs, law firms are the biggest employers of paralegals, and remote employees is the new norm in legal industry enabling law firms to benefit from cost savings, flexibility, and access to a wider talent pool.

PARALEGAL JOB DEMAND

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) reports that the paralegal and legal assistant professions will grow faster than average between 2022 and 2032, expanding by 14%, much faster than the average of all occupations. Law firms are the largest employers of paralegals both as onsite and remote employees.

However, many for-profit companies are also increasing their in-house legal departments and expanding their operations globally, and these developments will continue to increase the demand for paralegals in onsite and remote settings.

According to U.S. News & World Report, in 2024, paralegals earned a median salary of US$59,200. The top 25% made US$75,560, while the lowest-paid 25% made US$46,850. The BLS also indicates that the highest 10% earned more than US$94,960. However, these figures can fluctuate depending on the circumstances of the position.

EDUCATIONAL REQUIREMENT

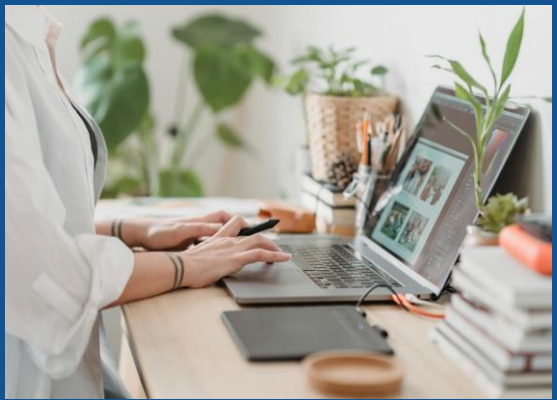

The minimum educational requirement for becoming a paralegal is a high school diploma and completion of paralegal professional training. An Associate's degree in any field may be enough in most cases, although a Bachelor's degree in any field is preferred by large law firms.

In the case of working at LPO providers or as a freelancer, high school diploma is enough. However, in all cases paralegal professional training with AI-enablement is essential to develop the required job-ready skills and knowledge-base to start your career as an entry-level paralegal.

Paralegals play a crucial role as onsite and remote employees in law firms, corporate legal departments, LPO providers, as well as self-employed freelancers by providing essential services and support to attorneys and clients. They handle a wide range of tasks, including legal research, legal documents preparation, client communication, and trial preparation. It is highly important to note that AI-enabled paralegals are highly in demand globally as legal industry stands out as the leading adopter of AI and generative AI tools.

REMOTE WORK OPPORTUNITIES

Remote and virtual job opportunities for paralegals are becoming increasingly prevalent, with many law firms, legal organizations and LPOs offering fully remote positions. These opportunities allow paralegals to work from anywhere with an internet connection and can be found in various practice areas, including corporate law, litigation, immigration, and more.
